W: Good evening, sir and madam. Do you want to have something to drink first?

M: Yes, I like some ice cold water and my friend would like some tea. Oh, wait. I like a glass of hot water for me instead.

第二节

W: John, do you realize the Christmas is only a month away? We've got to think about Christmas gifts.

M: Yes, and what a lot of relatives we have to think about!

W: Shall we decide what to send them all?

M: All right. Let's make a list of names and then decide what to give them all.

W: The children first, I think. What about Anne?

M: She's getting too grown-up for toys. We can let her choose a book.

W: Very well. Now what about Dick? He thinks about nothing but space travel nowadays.

M: Oh, that makes it easy. Shall we give him one of those space travel suits the toyshop has? You know what I mean; there is a big round plastic thing that goes over the head.

W: That's an excellent idea. He'll be quite excited.

M: What about your father?

W: He's fond of music. Perhaps some records?
